Third Party Exposure

In today's interconnected business world, companies rely on vendors and suppliers for various services, which can pose significant cybersecurity risks. Third-party exposure is a major concern, as companies can be held liable for any data breaches or security incidents that occur due to the actions of their third-party providers. In 2024, this risk is expected to increase as companies continue to outsource work to third-party providers. This makes it more critical for companies to have effective security measures in place to properly secure third-party access. Failure to do so can result in data breaches, financial losses, and reputational damage. To mitigate this risk, companies must prioritize implementing comprehensive security measures that include vendor risk assessments, due diligence, contractual requirements, and ongoing monitoring. Additionally, companies must ensure that their third-party providers adhere to cybersecurity best practices and standards. By taking these proactive steps, companies can better protect themselves from the risks associated with third-party exposure in 2024 and beyond.

Protect Advertising From Appearing Adjacent To Misinformation/Disinformation Content

In today's media landscape, the spread of misinformation and disinformation has become a major challenge for businesses. Not only does it pose reputational risks to brands, but it can also lead to financial losses. To address this issue, CMOs need to protect their advertising from appearing adjacent to such content by closely monitoring where their ads are being placed. They should also work with industry trade organizations, brand safety vendors, publishers, and advertising technology solutions to develop a comprehensive approach to brand safety. By doing so, CMOs can help safeguard their company's reputation and maintain consumer trust.
